Did you know...?

All boats are required by law to have a U.S. Coast Guard-approved, readily accessible, properly fitting life jacket for each person on board.

The U.S. Coast Guard recommends that you always wear a life jacket while underway on a boat.

A life jacket must be the correct size for the intended wearer. Check the size on the label inside the life jacket. When trying on the life jacket, make sure it fits snugly and the jacket does not ride up over the wearer's chin or face.

The U.S. Coast Guard requires children under 13 to wear an appropriate life jacket when underway unless they are below deck or in an enclosed cabin. State laws may vary, check with your local boating agency.

Adult-sized life jackets will not properly fit children.

Life jackets must be in good and serviceable condition, check for damage. If broken, torn or ripped, they should be replaced.

Boats that are 16 feet and over in length (except canoes and kayaks) must also have a throwable flotation device.

Nearly 3/4 of fatal boating accident victims drown each year and most of them were not wearing a life jacket*. Don't be a statistic. Borrow a life jacket today.
